It provides data on the output of educational institutions the impact of learning across countries the financial and human resources invested in education access participation and progression in education and the learning environment and organisation of schools The 2015 edition introduces more detailed analysis of participation in early childhood and tertiary levels of education The report also examines first generation tertiary educated adults educational and social mobility labour market outcomes for recent graduates and participation in employer sponsored formal and or non formal education Readiness to use information and communication technology for problem solving in teaching and learning is also examined The publication provides indicators on the impact of skills on employment and earnings gender differences in education and employment and teacher and school leader appraisal systems The report covers all 34 OECD countries and a number of partner countries Argentina Brazil China Colombia India Indonesia Latvia Russian Federation Saudi Arabia and South Africa and for the first time Costa Rica and Lithuania Publisher website ed Schools and Quality John Lowe,David Istance,Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development,1989 There is widespread discussion in OECD Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development countries regarding the need to improve educational quality Education is not an assembly line process of mechanically increasing inputs and raising productivity Educational quality concerns raise fundamental questions about societal aims the nature of participatory decision making at all levels and the school's purpose as an institution Reasons for the current interest in quality encompass reactions to the era of growth in the 1960s and early 1970s disappointment with recent structural reforms changing economic imperatives and workplace realities and a revival of interest in the social value of schooling This report clarifies the quality issue by addressing four broad overlapping questions concerned with 1 aims and objectives 2 the changing terms of educational debate 3 quality and equality considerations and 4 the standards question Key areas in the pursuit of educational quality include a common core curriculum issues related to assessment evaluation and monitoring teacher competence and commitment school organization and scheduling and physical and financial resources available to schools Ten characteristics exerting a powerful influence over positive school outcomes are summarized along with eight critical functions that should be exercised by education authorities MLH National Union Catalog ,1956 Includes entries for maps and atlases The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development's Changing Discourse on Higher Education Carrie Patricia Hunter,2013

Widener Library Shelflist: Education and education periodicals Harvard University. Library,1968 Funding Public Schools Kenneth K. Wong,1999 This book examines the fundamental role of politics in funding our public schools and fills a conceptual imbalance in the current literature in school finance and educational policy Unlike those who are primarily concerned about cost efficiency Kenneth Wong specifies how resources are allocated for what purposes at different levels of the government In contrast to those who focus on litigation as a way to reduce funding gaps he underscores institutional stalemate and the lack of political will to act as important factors that affect legislative deadlock in school finance reform

Wong defines how politics has sustained various types of rules that affect the allocation of resources at the federal state and local level While these rules have been remarkably stable over the past twenty to thirty years they have often worked at cross purposes by fragmenting policy and constraining the education process at schools with the greatest needs Wong s examination is shaped by several questions How do these rules come about What role does politics play in retention of the rules Do the federal state and local governments espouse different policies In what ways do these policies operate at cross purposes How do they affect educational opportunities Do the policies cohere in ways that promote better and more equitable student outcomes Wong concludes that the five types of entrenched rules for resource allocation are rooted in existing governance arrangements and seemingly impervious to partisan shifts interest group pressures and constitutional challenge And because these rules foster policy fragmentation and embody initiatives out of step with the performance based reform agenda of the 1990s the outlook for positive change in public education is uncertain unless fairly radical approaches are employed Wong also analyzes four allocative reform models two based on the assumption that existing political structures are unlikely to change and two that seek to empower actors at the school level The two models for systemwide restructuring aimed at intergovernmental coordination and or integrated governance would seek to clarify responsibilities for public education among federal state and local authorities above all integrating political and educational accountability The other two models identified by Wong shift control from state and district to the school one based on local leadership and the other based on market forces In discussing the guiding principles of the four models Wong takes care to identify both the potential and limitations of each Written with a broad policy audience in mind Wong s book should appeal to professionals interested in the politics of educational reform and to teachers of courses dealing with educational policy and administration and intergovernmental relations National Union Catalog Library of Congress,1979 Includes entries for maps and atlases
