

The Dramatic Monologue

"The Dramatic Monologue" is dramatic because it the utterance of imagery characters and not of the poet himself and because in it character is developed not through any description on the part of the poet but through a conflict between the opposite thoughts and emotions of the character himself. It is a monologue because it is a conversation of a single individual with himself.

A dramatic monologue is very much like a soliloquy- one man's speech but there is a difference between the two. In a soliloquy the speaker delivers his own thoughts without being interrupted by objections or opposition of the other person. In the dramatic monologue there is a presence of a second person to whom the thoughts of speak are presented through the second man, does not interrupt the main speaker.

Some of the dramatic monologues are in the form of soliloquy says Allen Brockington. The dramatic monologue was cultivated and developed by Browning with great success. The dramatic monologue was developed with great skill and it almost attained perfection. Like in Fra Lippo Lippi, The last Ride Together, Andrea Del Sarto etc.

Monologues of Browning are highly suggestive. The speech of the main actors can be interpreted in more than one way. The characters in these monologues believe in God and justified their deeds and actions by attributing to God's will. Browning dramatic monologues are mixtures of half truths and false hood. They are truthful records but defenses represented in a tricky and subtle style.

In the opinion of some critics the dramatic monologues are satires upon characters. They appear to be an exposition of their follies. As in the "Last Ride Together" is a defense of the lover, who failed me his love and so in Andrea Del Sarto. The last Ride Together is rich in beautiful passage marked with a real charm of language. Browning philosophy of life is best brought out in the dramatic monologues.

Dramatic Monologue Dramatic Monologue:

The Dramatic Monologue Elisabeth A. Howe, 1996 In The Dramatic Monologue Elisabeth A. Howe defines the characteristics of the subject as a genre clearly differentiating it from the lyric poem One feature she discusses is the double voice of the dramatic monologue the reader hears simultaneously the voices of the poet and the speaker This dialogical effect distinguishes the dramatic monologue both from lyric poetry and from narrative poems written in the first person The use of a persona allows the poet to distance himself or herself from the poem Howe investigates the origins of the dramatic monologue before examining poems by Browning and Tennyson both masters of the form and both largely responsible for its popularity with late nineteenth century readers and poets She offers close readings of Browning's The Bishop Orders His Tomb at Saint Praxed's Church and Tennyson's Tithonus Later chapters include detailed analyses of dramatic monologues by twentieth century poets including Ezra Pound's Marvell T. S. Eliot's Portrait of a Lady and poems by Robert Frost Randall Jarrell and the contemporary poet Richard Howard The Manyfaced Glass Linda K. Hughes, 1987 The hazy settings and amorphous auditors of Tennyson's dramatic monologues are often contrasted at Tennyson's expense with Browning's more vivid concrete realizations Hughes argues that Tennyson's achievements in the genre are in fact considerable that his influence can be traced in such major figures as T. S. Eliot and that the monologue occupies a far more central position in Tennyson's poetic achievement than has hitherto been acknowledged Hughes study challenges the traditional view of Tennyson's inferior achievement and her account of the elements and operation of the dramatic monologue especially as demonstrated by three of its most important practitioners will be of interest to all those concerned with the monologue as a poetic mode Selected Dramatic Monologues Of Robert Browning K.
