Students with Both Gifts and Learning Disabilities Tina A. Newman, Robert J. Sternberg, 2012-12-06 We were motivated to edit this book when we began to hear stories of exceptional students who were struggling with reading writing or math but who could solve seemingly any problem with computers or build the most intricate structures with Legos or could draw beautiful pictures or could tell the most creative stories but ended up in tears when asked to write it out How is it possible to have so much talent in some areas and yet to appear to have a disability in another What resources are available for these students How can we ensure that these students abilities are nurtured and developed Our goal in this book is to provide ideas and possibly even tentative answers for educators and to stimulate more questions to be answered by researchers We have ourselves been addressing related questions for some time Our group at the PACE Center at Yale has explored the development of abilities competencies and expertise that allow people to be successful in life Through this work we have collaborated with school districts and other educators and researchers across the country to expand the notion of what is traditionally thought of as intelligence We use the concept of successful intelligence to allow for the possibility that the skills traditionally taught in school are not the only ones and often not even the most important ones that allow people to be successful in the world

Disability and Society Renu Addlakha, 2009 In the 1980 s disabled scholars in the West began to develop a radical critique of biomedical conceptions of disability that focused exclusively on the individual body and its limitations They also exposed the failure of the social sciences to critically address what this medical understanding of disability meant and what it excluded from consideration Out of their work emerged what is generally called the social model of disability Over the past twenty years this perspective has generated a substantial literature much of it making use of the methods of qualitative social research Narratives and life histories produced by disabled people themselves have a central place in the Disability Studies literature This work has major implications for professionals in the rehabilitation field for the social sciences and the ultimate goal for the full integration of disabled people into society However almost all of it focuses on the traditions practices and dilemmas of northern countries In India in Thailand and in most of Asia the field of disability continues to be dominated by the biomedical model Thus disability is understood as an incurable chronic illness and increasingly an object for medical diagnosis and investigation Despite many positive developments little convergence between disability politics and practice on the one hand and sociology and anthropology on the other has taken place Surveying the international literature on disability and rehabilitation it becomes apparent that many studies carried out in Asian countries are designed to measure the extent of unmet need or the impact of services or attitudes to disabled people Virtually no studies make use of the innovative usually qualitative and often holistic approaches developed in Western countries over the past twenty years This book introduces readers in Asian countries to the recent disability literature of the West The editors hope that it will inspire new thinking among social scientist rehabilitation professionals and organizations of disabled people themselves that could further the empowerment of people with disabilities Encyclopedia of Special Education Cecil R. Reynolds, Elaine Fletcher-Janzen, 2007-01-02 Offers a thoroughly revised comprehensive A to Z compilation of authoritative information on the education of those with special needs Disability, Society and Assistive Technology Bodil Ravneberg, Sylvia Söderström, 2017-03-27 The provision of assistive technology is an important individual and collective service of the welfare state The state plays a significant role towards linking users and products and the matching of devices and users is both a science and an art However many people feel it is stigmatising to use individually designed assistive technologies as they often in a subtle way convey discriminating barriers in society The major challenges of assistive technology are thus to reduce social exclusion and marginalisation and importantly to reduce individual risks and societal costs related to non use due to deficiencies in usability aesthetics and design of the technologies This groundbreaking book discusses the relationships among society disability and technology by using different empirical examples e g school everyday life to show why the combination of disability studies and STS studies science technology and society is a fruitful approach to understanding and meeting these challenges The book explores the significance of the technologies for users society and the field identifies challenges to designing adopting and using assistive technologies and points at theoretical challenges in research as well as professional challenges in assistive technology service provision The book also scrutinises the role of assistive technology devices as well as the organisational structure of the assistive technology market in relation to disabled people s lives This book will be valuable reading for students academics teachers and social educators interested in Disability Studies STS Studies Product Design Sociology Occupational Therapy and Physiotherapy as well as engineers working in the field of assistive technology Solution-Focused Brief Therapy Johnny S.
