Foreword World Social Science Report ,2013 Disaster Resilience ,2015 Developing a Framework for Measuring Community Resilience National Research Council,Policy and Global Affairs,Resilient America Roundtable,Committee on Measures of Community Resilience: From Lessons Learned to Lessons Applied,2015-03-26 The 2012 National Research Council report Disaster Resilience A National Imperative highlighted the challenges of increasing national resilience in the United States One finding of the report was that without numerical means of assessing resilience it would be impossible to identify the priority needs for improvement to monitor changes to show that resilience had improved or to compare the benefits of increasing resilience with the associated costs Although measuring resilience is a challenge metrics and indicators to evaluate progress and the data necessary to establish the metric are critical for helping communities to clarify and formalize what the concept of resilience means for them and to support efforts to develop and prioritize resilience investments One of the recommendations from the 2012 report stated that government entities at federal state and local levels and professional organizations should partner to help develop a framework for communities to adapt to their circumstances and begin to track their progress toward increasing resilience To build upon this recommendation and begin to help communities formulate such a framework the Resilient America Roundtable of the National Academies convened the workshop Measures of Community Resilience From Lessons Learned to Lessons Applied on September 5 2014 in Washington D C The workshop s overarching objective was to begin to develop a framework of measures and indicators that could support community efforts to increase their resilience The framework will be further developed through feedback and testing in pilot and other partner communities that are working with the Resilient America Roundtable This report is a summary of the one day workshop which consisted of a keynote address and two panel sessions in the morning and afternoon breakout sessions that began the discussion on how to develop a framework of resilience measures Global Assessment Report on Disaster Risk Reduction United Nations. International Strategy for Disaster Reduction. Secretariat,2015 A comprehensive review and analysis of the natural hazards menacing humanity It also provides new and arresting evidence on how where and why disaster risk is increasing globally Drawing on detailed studies this Global Assessment urges a radical shift in development practices and a major new emphasis on resilience and disaster planning Global Assessment Report on Disaster Risk Reduction 2013 United Nations,2013 This publication is the third biennial report coordinated by the United Nations Office for Disaster Risk Reduction UNISDR The first and second reports focused primarily on public policy and the role of national and local governments in disaster risk reduction This current report explores why increasing disaster risks represent a growing problem for the economic and business community at different scales It examines how paradoxically business investments that aimed to strengthen competitiveness and productivity may have inadvertently contributed to increasing risks This report seeks to engage businesses in a dialogue on disaster risk management that goes beyond the current emphasis on response and preparedness and instead identifies opportunities for the creation of shared value for business and society Measures of Community Resilience for Local Decision Makers National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine,Policy and Global Affairs,Resilient America Roundtable,Committee on Processes and Objectives for Community Measures of Resilience,2017-03-16 The 2012 National Research Council report Disaster Resilience A National Imperative identified the development and use of resilience measures as critical to building resilient communities Although many kinds of resilience measures and measuring tools have and continue to be developed very few communities consistently use them as part of their planning or resilience building efforts Since federal or top down programs to build resilience often yield mixed results bottom up approaches are needed but are often difficult for communities to implement alone A major challenge for many communities in developing their own approaches to resilience measures is identifying a starting point and defining the process Other challenges include lack of political will due to competing priorities and limited resources finite time and staff to devote to developing resilience measures lack of data availability and or inadequate data sharing among community stakeholders and a limited understanding of hazards and or risks Building on existing work the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine organized a workshop in July 2015 to facilitate the exchange of knowledge and information about ways to advance the development and implementation of resilience measures by and within diverse communities Participants worked to gain a better understanding of the challenges these communities face in the pursuit of resilience and determine whether the approach used during this workshop can help guide communities in their efforts to build their own measures of resilience This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop

The Edge of Disaster Stephen E. Flynn,2007 The truth is acts of terror cannot always be prevented and nature continues to show its fury in frighteningly unpredictable ways Resiliency argues Flynn must now become our national motto With chilling frankness and clarity Flynn paints a vivid scenario of the threats we face within our own borders The Edge of Disaster tells us what we can do about these threats as individuals and as a society The time to act is now BOOK JACKET

The Journal of Home Economics ,1993 Vicarious Trauma and Disaster Mental Health Gertie Quitangon,Mark R. Evces,2015-02-11 Vicarious Trauma and Disaster Mental Health focuses on the clinician and the impact of working with disaster survivors Floods hurricanes tornadoes mass shootings terrorism and other large scale catastrophic events have increased in the last decade and disaster resilience has become a national imperative This book explores vicarious traumatization in mental health providers who respond to massive disasters by choice or by circumstance What happens when clinicians share the trauma and vulnerability from the toll taken by a disaster with the victims they care for How can clinicians increase resilience from disaster exposure and provide mental health services effectively Vicarious Trauma and Disaster Mental Health offers insight and analysis of the research and theory behind vicarious trauma and compares and contrasts with other work impact concepts such as burnout compassion fatigue and secondary traumatic stress It proposes practical evidence informed personal strategies and organizational approaches that address five cognitive schemas safety esteem trust control and intimacy disrupted in vicarious trauma With an emphasis on the psychological health and safety of mental health providers in the post disaster workplace this book represents a shift in perspective and provides a framework for the promotion of worker resilience in the standard of practice in disaster management Proceedings of ISRS National Symposium on Remote Sensing Applications for Natural Resources, Retrospective and Perspective ,2000 With reference to India Annual Report ASEAN.,2008
