Where Are They Now?

Each year, we see models come, and models go. This year, a few real favorites are no longer approved for towing by their manufacturers, including the Ford Escape and Suzuki Grand Vitara. As we're sure you're aware, the Ford Escape was completely redesigned for 2013, and that update includes a non-towable six-speed automatic transmission as its sole offering. And American Suzuki Motor Corporation has unfortunately filed for bankruptcy, so obviously we can't list any 2013 models — though you can probably make a smoking deal on a 2012 while they last. The Dodge Caliber has been discontinued, the Hyundai Sonata is no longer approved for dinghy towing. Kia has withdrawn the models it said were towable last year, and Toyota's Scion brand has politely excused all of its models from dinghy-tow duty.

Veloster turbo has a better power-to-weight ratio than rivals like the Mini Cooper S and VW GTI. Aside from the more powerful engine, the Veloster turbo also gets sport-tuned suspension, 18-inch alloy wheels with chrome inserts, a unique front fascia with fog lights, ground effects package and more. Inside, Veloster turbo features leather seating with the word "turbo" stitched into the seatbacks, and Hyundai Blue Link, which offers voice-to-text messaging, point of interest (POI) web search download, turn-by-turn navigation and other features. Only manual transmission models are towable.

JEEP PATRIOT 4WD

Adventurous drivers will be glad to know that the Jeep Patriot 4WD with manual transmission is now approved for towing. Billed as the best-priced compact sport utility vehicle in America, the Patriot includes standard features such as electronic stability control, electronic roll mitigation, hill-start assist, anti-lock disc brakes, fog lamps, tilt steering column, cruise control and a 60/40 split folding rear seat. Options include a Uconnect media center with iPod interface, SiriusXM Radio, navigation with SiriusXM Travel Link, power sunroof and a premium audio system.

SUBARU XV CROSSTREK

Subaru is famous for high-riding, all-wheel-drive models like the Forester and Outback. For 2013, it offers a new addition to the lineup with the XV Crosstrek. Boasting the best fuel efficiency of any AWD crossover utility in America, according to Subaru, the XV Crosstrek offers 8.7 inches of ground clearance, 17-inch alloy wheels, larger front brake rotors and a 15.9-gallon fuel tank. It's available in Premium and Limited models, with standard features like heated front seats, mirrors and windshield de-icer, tilt-telescoping steering wheel, power door locks and mirrors, Bluetooth connectivity and more. The upscale Limited model adds luxury features like leather, auto climate control and auto on/off headlights. Only manual transmission models are towable. ■

This guide addresses only 2013 vehicles. Guides for earlier model years are available online at www.motorhome.com
