Developmental Spans in Event

Comprehension and Representation Paul van den Broek, Patricia J. Bauer, Tammy Bourg, 2013-12-16 This book is about building metaphorical bridges all sorts of bridges At the most basic level it concerns the bridges that individuals build to understand the events that they experience the bridges that connect the events in the mind's eye At another level it is about bridges that interconnect findings and theoretical frameworks concerning event comprehension and representation in different age groups ranging from infancy to adulthood Finally it is about building bridges between researchers who share interests yet may not ordinarily even be aware of each other's work The success of the book will be measured in terms of the extent to which the contributors have been able to create a picture of the course of development across a wide span in chronological age and across different types of events from the fictional to the actual The individuals whose work is represented in this book conduct their work in a shared environment they all have an intellectual and scholarly interest in event comprehension and representation These interests are manifest in the overlapping themes of their work These include a focus on how people come to temporally integrate individual snapshots to form a coherent event that unfolds over time to understand cause and effect and to appreciate the role of the goal of events Another overlapping theme involves the possibility of individual differences These themes are apparent in work on the early development of representations of specific episodes and autobiographical memories and comprehension of complex events such as stories involving multiple characters and emotions The editors of this volume had two missions to create a development span by bringing together researchers working from infancy to adulthood and to create a bridge between individuals working from within the text comprehension perspective within the naturalistic perspective and with laboratory analogues to the naturalistic perspective Their measure of success will be the extent to which they have been able to create a picture of the course of development across a wide span in chronological age and across different types of events from fictional to actual

Context and Development Robert Cohen, Alexander W. Siegel, 2014-02-04 The purpose of this book is to explore meaningful integrations of developmental processes and functioning with conceptualizations of context a term traditionally denoting physical settings social arenas or perceptual or social backdrops in relation to a focal point However the study of context has taken a considerably more unique and vibrant form in recent years the term is becoming more than a substitute for background independent variables Rather the contributions of context to behavior thought feelings and vice versa are becoming central issues in many research domains This text is a collection of empirical and theoretical accounts for understanding context its focus is on integrating the study of context with the science of developmental psychology Although the authors work in many different areas of the field and with different populations they all converge on a central methodological conceptual theme of contextualism which is presented as the dynamic integration of intraindividual factors with environmental and social environmental factors

The Developmental Psychology of Planning Sarah L. Friedman,Ellin Kofsky

Scholnick,2014-02-25 Planning is defined as formulating an organized method for action in advance Although people do not plan all the time and planning does not occur in every situation planning skill is central to all human behavior There are developmental differences in planning skill and in the motivation to plan Even among adults variations in the engagement in the planning process are affected by individual attitudes beliefs and goals Planning also has a different meaning at various junctures in one s life Yet despite the amount of research on planning many of the studies have focused only on the cognitive processes that enable mature individuals to plan A continued exploration of the developmental course of planning this text attempts to situate cognitive aspects of planning in the context of the social and cultural environment and other psychological processes Bringing together the contributions of developmental organizational and social psychologists it explains how when and why we plan Finally it addresses various issues that pertain to the different aspects of planning from formal problem solving to handling the demands of everyday life

Neural Circuit Development and Function in the Healthy and Diseased Brain ,2013-05-06 The genetic molecular and cellular mechanisms of neural development are essential for understanding evolution and disorders of neural systems Recent advances in genetic molecular and cell biological methods have generated a massive increase in new information but there is a paucity of comprehensive and up to date syntheses references and historical perspectives on this important subject The Comprehensive Developmental Neuroscience series is designed to fill this gap offering the most thorough coverage of this field on the market today and addressing all aspects of how the nervous system and its components develop Particular attention is paid to the effects of abnormal development and on new psychiatric neurological treatments being developed based on our increased understanding of developmental mechanisms Each volume in the series consists of review style articles that average 15 20pp and feature numerous illustrations and full references Volume 3 offers 40 high level articles devoted mainly to anatomical and functional development of neural circuits and neural systems as well as those that address neurodevelopmental disorders in humans and experimental organisms Series offers 144 articles for 2904 full color pages addressing ways in which the nervous system and its components develop Features leading experts in various subfields as Section Editors and article Authors All articles peer reviewed by Section Editors to ensure accuracy thoroughness and scholarship Volume 3 sections include coverage of mechanisms that control the assembly of neural circuits in specific regions of the nervous system multiple aspects of cognitive development and disorders of the nervous system arising through defects in neural development

Memory for Everyday and Emotional Events Nancy L. Stein,Charles J. Brainerd,Barbara Tversky,Peter A. Ornstein,2018-10-24 The nature of memory for everyday events and the contexts that can affect it are controversial topics being investigated by researchers in cognitive social clinical and developmental lifespan psychology today This book brings many of these researchers together in an attempt to unpack the contextual and processing variables that play a part in everyday memory
