Cognitive Technology J.L. Mey, B. Gorayska, 1995-12-01 In this book the editors have gathered a number of contributions by persons who have been working on problems of Cognitive Technology CT The present collection initiates explorations of the human mind via the technologies the mind produces These explorations take as their point of departure the question What happens when humans produce new technologies Two interdependent perspectives from which such a production can be approached are adopted How and why constructs that have their origins in human mental life are embodied in physical environments when people fabricate their habitat even to the point of those constructs becoming that very habitat How and why these fabricated habitats affect and feed back into human mental life The aim of the CT research programme is to determine in general which technologies and in particular which interactive computer based technologies are humane with respect to the cognitive development and evolutionary adaptation of their end users But what does it really mean to be humane in a technological world To shed light on this central issue other pertinent questions are raised e g Why are human minds externalised i e what purpose does the process of externalisation serve What can we learn about the human mind by studying how it externalises itself How does the use of externalised mental constructs the objects we call tools change people fundamentally To what extent does human interaction with technology serve as an amplification of human cognition and to what extent does it lead to a atrophy of the human mind The book calls for a reflection on what a tool is Strong parallels between CT and environmentalism are drawn both are seen as trends having originated in our need to understand how we manipulate by means of the tools we have created our natural habitat consisting of on the one hand the cognitive environment which generates thought and determines action and on the other hand the physical environment in which thought and action are realised Both trends endeavour to protect the human habitat from the unwanted or uncontrolled impact of technology and are ultimately concerned with the ethics and aesthetics of tool design and tool use Among the topics selected by the contributors to the book the following themes emerge the list is not exhaustive using technology to empower the cognitively impaired the ethics versus aesthetics of technology the externalisation of emotive and affective life and its special dialectic mirror effects creativity enhancement cognitive space problem tractability externalisation of sensory life and mental imagery the engineering and modelling aspects of externalised life externalised communication channels and inner dialogue externalised learning protocols relevance analysis as a theoretical framework for cognitive technology

A Bibliography on Writing and Written Language Konrad Ehlich, Florian Coulmas, Gabriele Graefen, 2011-06-01 The bibliography offers information on research about writing and written language over the past 50 years No comprehensive bibliography on this subject has been published since Sattler's 1935 handbook With a selection of some 27 500 titles it covers the most important literature in all scientific fields relating to writing Emphasis has been placed on the interdisciplinary organization of the bibliography creating many points of common interest for literacy experts educationalists psychologists sociologists linguists cultural anthropologists and historians The bibliography is organized in such a way as to provide the specialist as well as the researcher in neighboring disciplines with access to the relevant literature on writing in a given field While necessarily selective it also offers information on more specialized bibliographies In addition an overview of norms and standards concerning script and writing will prove very useful for non professional readers It is therefore also of interest to the generally interested public as a reference work for the humanities

Stevens, 2013 Disability and chronic illness represents a special kind of cultural diversity the other to normal able bodiedness Most studies of disability consider disability in North American or European contexts and studies of diversity in Japan consider ethnic and cultural diversity but not the differences arising from disability This book therefore breaks new ground both for scholars of disability studies and for Japanese studies scholars It charts the history and nature of disability in Japan discusses policy and law relating to disability examines caregiving and accessibility and explores how disability is viewed in Japan Throughout the book highlights the tension between individual responsibility and state intervention the issues concerning how care for disability is paid for and the special problem of how Japan is providing care for its large and increasing population of elderly people
