Disability and International Development

David Cobley,2018-04-09 Despite growing evidence of a close and complex relationship between disability and poverty development policy planning and programming has often failed to take full account of the concerns of disabled people However following the 2006 UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the post 2015 sustainable development agenda which promises to leave no one behind there have been increasing calls from governments and development agencies for disability to be mainstreamed into all development planning Disability and International Development provides a comprehensive overview of key themes in the field of disability and development including issues around identity poverty disability rights education health livelihoods disaster recovery and approaches to researching disability The book engages with relevant theory and draws on existing literature in the field as well as the author s own research and teaching experience to explore key issues using a range of examples taken from around the world Written in an accessible and engaging style to suit both students and practitioners the book also includes a wide range of reflection exercises discussion questions and further reading suggestions making it the perfect introduction to disability and international development

Disability, Liberation, and Development Peter Coleridge,1993-01-01 Disabled people are marginalized in every country of the world both North and South By probing these prejudices and studying cases where they have been overcome this book provides an insight into the processes of liberation and empowerment

Inclusive Education in Low-Income Countries Lilian Mariga,Roy

McConkey,2014-04-02 The history of people with disabilities has been dominated by their isolation and exclusion The long fight towards inclusion and inclusive education in particular started not many years ago Most were powerless to control their own destiny Their participation in society has been the object of others actions In many countries their disability policies have a substantial element of protection and charity but not the right to equalisation of opportunities This book highlights the process of change that is underway internationally The equalisation of opportunities requires new processes through which the various systems of society such as health services and education are delivered It means the right for people with disabilities to remain in their communities and to receive the schooling and social supports they need within the ordinary structures available in local communities Strong advocacy is needed for this to happen In particular parents need to be empowered communities mobilised and professionals trained in new ways of working hence this book Drawing on experiences in Africa the book describes the issues to be considered when it comes to implementing inclusive strategies the processes to be followed and the roles of different sectors such as people with disabilities parents policy makers educationalists health and community development professionals and crucially society at large We Can Make it Susan Epstein,1997 This volume contains stories of 25 disabled women in Asia Africa and Latin America They tell how they defied the odds to become educators lawyers farmers and shopkeepers Their success is measured not only in monetary terms but in the number of obstacles they have overcome The women speak candidly about discrimination motivating influences the quest for education and employment and the desire to be wives and mothers They also offer pragmatic advice for policy makers so that more disabled women can achieve their potential and contribute to society The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,2009 Parliamentary Debates (Hansard). Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons,1927 Contains the 4th session of the 28th Parliament through the session of the Parliament Disability & the Politics of Education Susan Lynn Gabel, Scot Danforth,2008 Disability and the Politics of Education An International Reader is a rich resource that deals comprehensively with the many aspects of the complex topic of disability studies in education For nearly two decades global attention has been given to education as a human right through global initiatives such as Education for All EFA and the Salamanca Statement Yet according to UNESCO reaching the goals of EFA remains one of the most daunting challenges facing the global community Today millions of the world's disabled children cannot obtain a basic childhood education particularly in countries with limited resources Even in the wealthiest countries many disabled children and youth are educationally segregated from the nondisabled particularly if they are labeled with significant cognitive impairment International agencies such as the United Nations and the World Bank have generated funds for educational development but unfortunately these funds are administered with the assumption that west is best thereby urging developing countries to mimic educational policies in the United States and the United Kingdom in order to prove their aid worthiness This McDonaldization of education reproduces the labeling resource allocation and social dynamics long criticized in disability studies The authors in this volume explore these subjects and other complexities of disability and the politics of education In doing so they demonstrate the importance and usefulness of international perspectives and comparative approaches The Disabled Child ,1981
