William R. Stevenson

Discipleship As Political Responsibility:

Discipleship as Political Responsibility John Howard Yoder, 2003-10-09 John Howard Yoder went to Europe after the Second World War as a young volunteer Yoder worked as an aide in a children's home in Elsass France and completed his doctorate under Karl Barth in Basel Switzerland Because of his incomparably clear and sharp thinking he quickly became one of the most sought after speakers on pacifism at seminars as he worked towards an Anabaptist renewal of the church In this context Yoder succeeded in reopening the theological debate on Christians and political responsibility with the larger church to which persecution had put an end 400 years earlier Biblical scholar Timothy J Gedder translated two of these lectures originally given in Germany as a resource to understand Yoder's invitation to begin an exploratory journey that leads to Jesus Christ's peace church

The Trace of the Face in the Politics of Jesus John Patrick Kooyes, 2013-06-26 Taking its cue from Mark Naison's regret that John Howard Yoder refrained from a fuller engagement with the Western philosophical tradition this book is an effort to explore the possibilities inherent in that conversation It develops a dialogue between Yoder and the French philosopher Emmanuel Levinas The placement of Yoder's work alongside of Levinas's conception of otherness cashes out the embedded hope in Naison's remarks by demonstrating the continuing relevancy of Yoder's thought for current Christian sociopolitical discourse This book is especially aimed at those who seek to continue exploring the themes and ideas of John Howard Yoder

Beyond Suspicion Paul G. Doerksen, 2010-01-01 The modern era includes a two-fold tradition of radical suspicion the suspicion that politicians corrupt morality and that politics is corrupted by theology However such a view has been challenged in recent theological thought which seeks to move beyond such suspicion to recover a constructive role for political theology By pursuing a critical comparison of the political theologies of John Howard Yoder and Oliver O'Donovan The present work shows how post-Christendom Protestant political theology has attempted to move beyond suspicion without putting forward some hidden attempt to reassert a contemporary version of Christendom O'Donovan's political theology written from within the British Anglican tradition Is a bold project in which he attempts to push back the horizons of commonplace secularist politics and open it up theologically a move that he believes will offer crucial resources for thinking about justice And The common good A related response is presented by Yoder who As an American Mennonite represents Anabaptism From this more marginal ecclesial location Yoder's thought stands both as a challenge to regnant liberal notions of the relation of church and state and as an important interlocutor for O'Donovan's political theology Yoder argues that political theology entails a particular kind of focus on the church where the very shape of the church in the world is a public witness For The world and not first of all a withdrawal from the world The critical comparison brings to view areas of significant convergence and divergence in understandings of the Hebrew Scriptures as well as the New Testament O'Donovan and Yoder's respective interpretations of Christendom are also fundamentally divergent As are their views on the legitimacy of the use of force by government clearly seen in O'Donovan's support of Just War Tradition and Yoder's promotion of Messianic Pacifism Retrieving the Natural Law J. Daryl Charles, 2008-04-14 J Daryl Charles argues that a traditional metaphysics of natural law lies at the heart of the present reconstructive project and that a revival in natural law thinking is of the highest priority for the Christian community as we contend in rather than abdicate the public square Nowhere is this more on display than in the realm of bioethics where the most basic moral questions human personhood human rights versus responsibilities the reality of moral evil the basis of civil society are being debated from publisher description Struggles for Shalom Laura Brenneman, Brad D.
