What are some differences you have noticed in the size and shape of dogs in your neighborhood?

Do their differences make them better at some things, but not well-suited for others?

What would happen if the world suddenly changed, so the only thing that dogs could eat was deer and there was absolutely no way for a dog to eat if it wasn't big or strong enough to catch and kill a deer?

Most likely, smaller dogs would die off and the bigger ones would survive and reproduce. After a while, instead of a population of dogs of all sizes, most of the dogs in the population would be big dogs.

Describe what is happening in figures 1-3. Is the population of mice different in figure 3 than in figure 1? Explain why.

Natural Selection in the Wild John A. Endler, 2020-03-31 Natural selection is an immense and important subject yet there have been few attempts to summarize its effects on natural populations and fewer still which discuss the problems of working with natural selection in the wild These are the purposes of John Endler's book In it he discusses the methods and problems involved in the demonstration and measurement of natural selection presents the critical evidence for its existence and places it in an evolutionary perspective Professor Endler finds that there are a remarkable number of direct demonstrations of selection in a wide variety of animals and plants The distribution of observed magnitudes of selection in natural populations is surprisingly broad and it overlaps extensively the range of values found in artificial selection He argues that the common assumption that selection is usually weak in natural populations is no longer tenable but that natural selection is only one component of the process of evolution natural selection can explain the change of frequencies of variants but not their origins
