From Chance To Choice Genetics And Justice:

From Chance to Choice Allen Buchanan, Dan W. Brock, 2000 This book written by four internationally renowned bioethicists and first published in 2000 was the first systematic treatment of the fundamental ethical issues underlying the application of genetic technologies to human beings Probing the implications of the remarkable advances in genetics the authors ask how should these affect our understanding of distributive justice equality of opportunity the rights and obligations as parents the meaning of disability and the role of the concept of human nature in ethical theory and practice The book offers a historical context to contemporary debate over the use of these technologies by examining the eugenics movement of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries The questions raised in this book will be of interest to any reflective reader concerned about science and society and the rapid development of biotechnology as well as to professionals in such areas as philosophy bioethics medical ethics health management law and political science

From Chance to Choice Allen Buchanan, Dan W. Pursuing Equal Opportunities Lesley A. Jacobs, 2004 This book offers original and innovative contributions to the debate about equality of opportunity The first part sets out a theory of equality of opportunity that presents equal opportunities as a normative device for the regulation of competition for scarce resources The second part shifts the focus to the consideration of the practical application by courts or legislatures or public policy makers of policies for addressing racial class or gender injustices The author examines standardized tests affirmative action workfare universal health care comparable worth and the economic consequences of divorce

The Oxford Handbook of Reproductive Ethics Leslie Francis, 2017 Intimate and medicalized natural and technological reproduction poses some of the most challenging ethical dilemmas of our time This volume brings together scholars from multiple perspectives to address both traditional and novel questions about the rights and responsibilities of human reproducers their caregivers and the societies in which they live

Design and Destiny Ronald Cole-Turner, 2008 Scholars discuss the genetic modification of embryonic cells from the viewpoints of traditional Jewish and Christian teaching considering both the possible therapeutic benefits of this technology and moral concerns about its implementation We are approaching the day when advances in biotechnology will allow parents to design a baby with the traits they want The continuing debate over the possibilities of genetic engineering has been spirited but so far largely confined to the realms of bioethics and public policy Design and Destiny approaches the question in religious terms discussing human germline modification the genetic modification of the embryonic cells that become the eggs or sperm of a developing organism from the viewpoints of traditional Christian and Jewish teaching The contributors leading religious scholars and writers call our attention not to technology but to humanity reflecting upon the meaning and destiny of human life in a technological age Many of these scholars argue that religious teaching can support human germline modification implemented for therapeutic reasons although they offer certain moral conditions that must be met The essays offer a surprising variety of opinions including a discussion of Judaism's traditional presumption in favor of medicine an argument that Catholic doctrine could accept germline modification if it is therapeutic for the embryo an argument implying that traditional Christian teaching permits germline modification whether for therapy or enhancement and a classical Protestant view that germline modification should be categorically opposed Contributors Lisa Sowle Cahill Nigel M de S Cameron Ronald Cole Turner Amy Michelle DeBaets Celia Deane Drummond Elliot Dorff H Tristram Engelhardt Jr Thomas A Shannon James J Walter

Responsibility and Distributive Justice Carl Knight, Zofia Stemplowska, 2011-03-03 This volume presents new essays investigating a difficult theoretical and practical problem how do we find a place for individual responsibility in a theory of distributive justice Does what we choose affect what we deserve Would making justice sensitive to responsibility give people what they deserve Would it advance or hinder equality

A Christian Response to the New Genetics David H. Smith, Cynthia B. Cohen, 2003 Life is a gift that includes powers to be used and celebrated but that doesn't necessarily justify the use of every new power that comes along A Christian Response to the New Genetics appeals to both secular and religious readers in the center of the great debate over our new genetic powers These essays affirm many traditional Christian perspectives and virtues while also introducing new insights The authors explore a broad range of topics including genetic testing gene transfer genetic manipulation patenting health insurance and the moral status of embryos They conclude it is naive to either outright reject or wholeheartedly embrace the new genetic powers In fact sometimes the best we can expect is to learn how to cope with moral uncertainty A Christian Response to the New Genetics originated with initiatives of the Episcopal Church but the book is neither an official statement of Episcopal theological ethics nor a parochial lamentation
