Great Powers and the Asia-Pacific Kashi Prasad Misra,1991 The Globalization of Higher Education Luc Weber,James J. Duderstadt,2008 The Glion VI Colloquium departed from its customary transatlantic dialogue by broadening participation including university leaders from around the world representing 18 nations and five continents to consider the globalization of higher education The emergence of a global knowledge driven economy is driven by a radically new system for creating wealth that depends upon the creation and application of new knowledge and hence upon advanced education research innovation and entrepreneurial activities Both mature and developing nations are making major investments in building the knowledge infrastructure schools universities research institutes high tech industry cyberinfrastructure public policies and programs necessary to achieve prosperity and security in the knowledge economy In parallel with these trends there is a strong sense that higher education is also in the early stages of globalization both through the increasing mobility of students and faculty and the rapid growth in international partnerships among universities Some even conjecture that we will soon see the emergence of truly global universities which not only intend to compete in the global marketplace for students faculty and resources but also are increasingly willing to define their public purpose in terms of global needs such as public health political economic and environmental sustainability and international development The first part of this volume provides a context for the subsequent discussion of the impact of globalization on the university from the perspective of a university leader a foundation president and an industry executive Part II considers the global strategies of established universities from several nations the United States the United Kingdom Europe Australia Japan and Russia A quite different perspective is provided by the participants in the third part which focuses on strategies for emerging universities and university systems in China Singapore Korea and Brazil Part IV turns to a broader discussion of global competition and cooperation within the context of changing paradigms in higher education with participants from an unusually broad range of institutions including business schools industry scientific academies open universities and technology institutes The final part examines the broader global responsibilities of higher education from the perspective of Europe the Middle East and the United States

From extending successful brands into exotic new markets to tapping talent in virtual teams to building ultra complex supplier and distributor networks today's executives and managers must consider the international implications of every decision they make. To put the magnitude of global business in context consider that between 1820 and 1992 world population increased 5 fold, world income 40 fold and world trade 540 fold. And in the past decade the pace of change has only accelerated with the Internet for example making connections instantaneous and ubiquitous and global aspirations attainable for even the smallest of enterprises. Certainly globalization has its detractors but for today's business leaders the issue is not to debate the merits of globalization but to learn how to thrive in the global marketplace. In Borderless Business the authors tackle every major dimension of globalization from marketing to human resource management to supply chains to accounting and finance and demonstrate how these issues play out in a global context. Each chapter describes the new skills and competencies that managers must master in order to lead their companies in this environment where every management challenge is amplified. Featuring current data and dozens of case examples and applications from around the world, Borderless Business will serve as a practical handbook for executives and managers and as an indispensable text for students of international business.
