Loudon Professor of Philosophy University of Southern Maine, 2007-09-21 The World We Want compares the future world that Enlightenment intellectuals had hoped for with our own world at present In what respects do the two worlds differ and why are they so different To what extent is and isn t our world the world they wanted and to what extent do we today still want their world Unlike previous philosophical critiques and defenses of the Enlightenment the present study focuses extensively on the relevant historical and empirical record first by examining carefully what kind of future Enlightenment intellectuals actually hoped for second by tracking the different legacies of their central ideals over the past two centuries But in addition to documenting the significant gap that still exists between Enlightenment ideals and current realities the author also attempts to show why the ideals of the Enlightenment still elude us What does our own experience tell us about the appropriateness of these ideals Which Enlightenment ideals do not fit with human nature Why is meaningful support for these ideals particularly within the US so weak at present Which of the means that Enlightenment intellectuals advocated for realizing their ideals are inefficacious Which of their ideals have devolved into distorted versions of themselves when attempts have been made to realize them How and why after more than two centuries have we still failed to realize the most significant Enlightenment ideals In short what is dead and what is living in these ideals

Philosophy's Own Religion Don Cupitt, 2000 In this book Don Cupitt presents his systematic philosophy of religion He begins by showing what is wrong with the way the subject is usually taught scraps from various philosophies of the past are selected for use in the service of an agenda controlled by theology Inevitably the result is something closer to religious apologetics than to genuine philosophy Cupitt sets out his alternative approach in two parts The first is a democratic metaphysics Cupitt describes popular systematic philosophy as being today the most urgently needed and yet the most neglected kind of philosophy He describes his own position as combining nihilism with radical humanism and as a language mediated radical religious humanism From this Cupitt then derives philosophy s own religion It is without dogma It is a religion of life in which we learn to say Yes to transience to practise expressive or solar living and to be humanitarians in social ethics r Philosophy s own religion is the religious outlook we would come to if we were to make a new beginning and to be strictly rational It is not wholly novel versions of it crop up often in the history of philosophy Another version of it was the very earliest form of Christianity the kingdom theology of Jesus and the first generation
