Global Forest Governance Global Forest Governance:

Global Forest Governance and Climate Change Emmanuel O. Nuesiri, 2018-03-07 This edited collection assesses governance in forestry programmes and projects including REDD governance It examines political representation participation and decentralisation in forest governance providing insight as to how forest governance arrangements can be responsive to the socio economic interests of local people and communities who live adjacent to and depend on forests Global Forest Governance and Climate Change argues that inclusive complementary representation of local communities is required for strong participatory processes and democratic decentralisation of forest governance Responsiveness to local people's socio economic interests in forestry initiatives require paying attention to not just the hosting of participatory meetings and activities but also to the full cast of appointed self authorized and elected representative agents that stand speak and act for local people This book will be of interest to students and academics across the fields of climate change governance forestry development studies and political economy It will also be a useful resource for policy makers and practitioners responsible for forestry and climate change initiatives

Global Forest Governance R. Maguire, 2013-03-01 This work provides an important broad and legal critique and assessment of transnational trends structures and innovations currently in use for managing forests

Embracing Complexity: Meeting the Challenges of International Forest Governance Jeremy Rayner, 2010 Emerging Economic Mechanisms for Global Forest Governance Gérard Buttoud, 2012 Logjam David Humphreys, 2008 First Published in 2006 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

Forest and Nature Governance Bas Arts, Jelle Behagel, Séverine van Bommel, Jessica de Koning, Esther Turnhout, 2012-09-23 Today problems such as deforestation biodiversity loss and illegal logging have provoked various policy responses that are often referred to as forest and nature governance In its broadest interpretation governance is about the many ways in which public and private actors from the state market and or civil society govern public issues at multiple scales This book takes a fresh perspective on the study of forest and nature governance Departing from practice theory and building upon scholars like Giddens Bourdieu Reckwitz Schatzki and Callon it seeks to move beyond established understandings of institutions actors and knowledge In so doing it not only presents an innovative conceptual and methodological framework for a practice based approach but also rich case studies and ethnographies Finally this book is about how actors involved in governance talk about and work with trees forests biodiversity wildlife and so on while acting upon forest policies environmental discourses codes of conduct or scientific insights

The European Union in Global Forest Governance Minna Jokela, 2006

Fragmentation of Global Forest Governance and Its Consequences Anneke Rooth, 2016 China's Role in Promoting Global Forest Governance and Combating Deforestation, 2022 Private Rule-Making and the Politics of Accountability: Analyzing Global Forest Governance Sander Chan (and Pattberg, Philipp), Quality and Legitimacy of Global Governance T. Cadman, 2011-02-08 As the international community struggles with major issues such as deforestation it is increasingly turning to sustainable development and market based mechanisms to tackle environmental problems Focusing on forestry this book investigates the legitimacy of global forums and evaluates the quality of global governance in the current era

Embracing Complexity: Meeting the Challenges of International Forest

Governance Jeremy Rayner,2010 Forest Governance Jessica Stubenrauch,Felix Ekardt,Katharina Hagemann,Beatrice Garske,2022-04-22 This book analyses and develops overarching concepts for forest policy and forest governance and includes a detailed investigation into the historical discussion on forests It examines opportunities and limits for negative emissions in a sector that like peatlands appears significantly less ambivalent compared to highly technical large scale forms of climate geoengineering The analysis shows that the binding climate and biodiversity targets under international law are much more ambitious than most people assume Measured against that the volume critically reviews the potentials of afforestation and reforestation for climate mitigation which is often presented as the new saviour to fulfil the commitments of the Paris Agreement and to reach climate neutrality in the future It becomes clear that ultimately only biodiverse and thus resilient forests can function as a carbon sink in the long term The volume shows that the existing European and international forest governance approaches fail to comply with these targets and insights Furthermore the book develops a bundle of policy measures Quantity governance systems for livestock farming fossil fuels and similar drivers of deforestations represent the most important approach They are most effective when not directly targeting forests due to their heterogeneity but central damaging factors With regard to the dominant regulatory and subsidy based governance for forests we show that it remains necessary to supplement these quantity governance systems with certain easily graspable and thus controllable regulatory and subsidy regulations such as a regulatory protection of old growth forests with almost no exceptions extension of the livestock to land ratio established in organic farming to all farming far reaching restriction of bioenergy use to certain residues flanked by import bans and a national and international complete conversion of all agricultural and forest subsidies to public money for public services to promote nature conservation and afforestation in addition to the quantity control systems

Governing Africa's Forests in a Globalized World

Laura A. German,Anne-Marie Tiani,Alain Karsenty,2009-12 Many countries around the world are engaged in decentralization processes and most African countries face serious problems with forest governance from benefits sharing to illegality and sustainable forest management This book summarizes experiences to date on the extent and nature of decentralization and its outcomes most of which suggest an underperformance of governance reforms and explores the viability of different governance instruments in the context of weak governance and expanding commercial pressures over forests Findings are grouped into two thematic areas decentralization livelihoods and sustainable forest management and international trade finance and forest sector governance reforms The authors examine diverse forces shaping the forest sector including the theory and practice of decentralization usurpation of authority corruption and illegality inequitable patterns of benefits capture and expansion of international trade in timber and carbon credits and discuss related outcomes on livelihoods forest condition and equity The book builds on earlier volumes exploring different dimensions of decentralization and perspectives from other world regions and distills dimensions of forest governance that are both unique to Africa and representative of broader global patterns Authors ground their analysis in relevant theory while attempting to distill implications of their findings for policy and practice

The Wicked Problem of Forest Policy William Nikolakis, John L. Innes, 2020-07-30 Provides a global analysis of policies to address deforestation an important driver of climate change

The Global Forest Sector Eric Hansen, Rajat Panwar, Richard Vlosky, 2013-12-04 Changes in production demand supply and trade patterns the impact of green building and bioenergy on industry practices and policy infrastructure and new economies with production advantages and large consumption bases all present challenges and opportunities in the forest sector With contributions from leading experts in academia and professional organizations The Global Forest Sector Changes Practices and Prospects fills a gap in the literature that is preventing students scholars and policy makers from developing a timely structured big picture view of forest sector business In addition the book reviews current thinking on a wide variety of business management issues in the forest sector The book covers managing change in the global forest sector and the impact of globalization on forest users It discusses markets and market forces new products and product categories and the influence of China and Russia The book then examines the environmental paradigm including environmental activism sustainability and the impact of green building and bioenergy The book concludes with coverage of the role of information technology corporate social responsibility innovation and next steps Overall this book helps readers both develop a bird s eye view of the changes surrounding the forest sector as well as have a magnified view of numerous managerial issues associated with these changes The content paints a picture of the current and changing forest sector including the state of forests the nature of markets the newly emerged patterns of stakeholder impact and evolution of key business practices It provides the foundation needed to develop the conservation based economy required for future success in the global forest sector

Brazil in the Global Forest Governance: the Brazilian Initiative of Developing a National Strategy on REDD+ Policies Patricia Gallo Barbosa Lima, 2017

Corporate Role Conceptions in Global Forest Governance Anne-Kathrin Weber, 2020 Abstract Multinational corporations MNCs are increasingly seen as key actors in global governance This article introduces the concept of corporate role conceptions as a new and interdisciplinary approach for analysing the self conception of MNCs To illustrate its analytical strength the concept is used to explore how MNCs operating in major forest risk supply chains that is cattle palm oil pulp soy and timber conceive themselves and their function in global forest governance The empirical analysis shows that their self conception is both complex and multifaceted as they seek to perform several functions at the same time corporate decision makers consider it appropriate for their corporation to be a pioneer a role model a supporter and co creator a dedicated worker a force for prosperity a good global citizen and a good steward However these corporate role conceptions are overlapping and partly incompatible which leads to role conflict I argue that this role conflict constrains corporate agency in global forest governance and therefore diminishes the potential of MNCs to promote positive change Forest

Governance and Management Across Time Erland Måråld, Camilla Sandstrom, Annika Nordin, and Others, 2017-09-22 The influence of the past and of the future on current time tradeoffs in the forest arena are particularly relevant given the long term successions in forest landscapes and the hundred years rotations in forestry Historically established path dependencies and conflicts determine our present situation and delimit what is possible to achieve Similarly future trends and desires have a large influence on decision making Nevertheless decisions about forest governance and management are always made in the present in the present time appraisal of the developed situation future alternatives and in negotiation between different perspectives interests and actors This book explores historic and future outlooks as well as current tradeoffs and methods in forest governance and management It emphasizes the generality and complexity with empirical data from Sweden and internationally It first investigates from a historical perspective how previous forest policies and discourses have influenced current forest governance and management Second it considers methods to explore alternative forest futures and how the results from such investigations may influence the present Third it examines current methods of balancing tradeoffs in decision making among ecosystem services Based on the findings the authors develop an integrated approach Reflexive Forestry to support exchange of knowledge and understandings to enable capacity building and the establishment of common ground Such societal agreements or what the authors elaborate as forest social contracts are sets of relational commitment between involved actors that may generate mutual action and a common directionality to meet contemporary challenges

Global Forest Fragmentation Chris J Kettle, Lian Pin Koh, 2014-09-12 Forest fragmentation will inevitably continue over the coming years especially in developing economies This book provides a cutting edge review of the multi disciplinary sciences related to studies of global forest fragmentation It specifically addresses cross cutting themes from both an ecological and a social sciences perspective The ultimate goal of Global Forest Fragmentation is to provide a detailed scientific base to support future forest landscape management and planning to meet global environmental and societal needs
