Nontimber Forest Products in the United States Eric T. Jones, Rebecca Jean McLain, James F. Weigand, 2002 A quiet revolution is taking place in America s forests Once seen primarily as stands of timber our woodlands are now prized as a rich source of a wide range of commodities from wild mushrooms and maple sugar to hundreds of medicinal plants whose uses have only begun to be fully realized Now as timber harvesting becomes more mechanized and requires less labor the image of the lumberjack is being replaced by that of the forager This book provides the first comprehensive examination of nontimber forest products NTFPs in the United States illustrating their diverse importance describing the people who harvest them and outlining the steps that are being taken to ensure access to them As the first extensive national overview of NTFP policy and management specific to the United States it brings together research from numerous disciplines and analytical perspectives such as economics mycology history ecology law entomology forestry geography and anthropology in order to provide a cohesive picture of the current and potential role of NTFPs The contributors review the state of scientific knowledge of NTFPs by offering a survey of commercial and noncommercial products an overview of uses and users and discussions of sustainable management issues associated with ecology cultural traditions forest policy and commerce They examine some of the major social economic and biological benefits of NTFPs while also addressing the potential negative consequences of NTFP harvesting on forest ecosystems and on NTFP species populations Within this wealth of information are rich accounts of NTFP use drawn from all parts of the American landscape from the Pacific Northwest to the Caribbean From honey production to a review of nontimber forest economies still active in the United States such as the Ojibway harvest of plants recounted here the book takes in the whole breadth of recent NTFP issues including ecological concerns associated with the expansion of NTFP markets and NTFP tenure issues on federally managed lands No other volume offers such a comprehensive overview of NTFPs in North America By examining all aspects of these products it contributes to the development of more sophisticated policy and management frameworks for not only ensuring their ongoing use but also protecting the future of our forests

Gender Mainstreaming: Facilitator's guide, 2007 Mainstreaming Gender, Democratizing the State Shirin Rai, 2017-07-12 Mainstreaming Gender Democratizing the State reflects the commitment of the United Nations to promote mechanisms that aim to achieve equality between women and men It identifies institutional mechanisms for the advancement of women including national machineries as one of twelve critical areas of concern National machineries are the primary institutional mechanism entrusted with the implementation of the strategic objectives contained in the goals for equity set by the United Nations The mandate of these national institutions has evolved from promoting women specific projects to ensuring that equality concerns are integrated into all government legislation policy programs and budgetary processes National machineries face serious constraints in fulfilling their mandate including inadequate financial and human resources relatively powerless locations within government structures and insufficient linkage with civil societies This volume illustrates that the ability of UN member states to subscribe to the agenda of equality between women and men has been significantly enhanced by the creation of these national level institutions National machineries for the advancement of women were initially conceived at the World Conference on the International Women's Year held in Mexico City in 1975 and since then have been considered systematically by world conferences on women in Copenhagen 1980 Nairobi 1985 and Beijing 1995 as well as the sessions of the Commission on the Status of Women The twenty third special session of the General Assembly in Beijing reiterated the significant role that national machineries play in promoting equality between women and men gender mainstreaming and monitoring of the implementation of the Beijing

Platform for Action as well as the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women There has been a long standing need for a volume to bring together discussions on theory and practice as well as comparative analysis and in depth case studies of national machineries this book responds to that need Rural Development Abstracts ,1994
