Welton, 2015-06-25 Excerpt from Teacher's Handbook to Groundwork of English Grammar The importance of teaching English composition is now generally recognized but for some years there has been a tendency to minimize if not to deny the value of English grammar as a school subject Yet a little reflexion shows that as grammar is an examination of the construction of sentences and so is implicit in all composition such a study of it as will make that construction explicit should be of value in composition itself Further composition is the expression of thought in language Consequently an examination of modes of expression involves an examination of thought itself The study of grammar has thus a directly logical as well as an instrumental linguistic value Nor need such a study be uninteresting to children To think and to express thoughts clearly and unambiguously are forms of skill And no skill is acquired without carefully examined practice It is never enough merely to practise for if the activity no matter what it is be badly done practice will simply strengthen the faults If children are to be taught both to think clearly and to express their thoughts precisely they must be led to consider both thought and expression to form the habits of knowing exactly what they mean and of putting that meaning unambiguously into words About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Basic English Grammar Teacher's Guide, 4e Betty Schramper Azar, Stacy A.
