Cooper, 2002-09-11 It tells how a young man from the Deep South combined his interests in football an engineering education and service to his country by attending the US Naval Academy Choosing the Marines upon graduation in 1950 he completed Marine training and was in Korea in spring of 1951 as a rifle platoon commander His vivid combat experiences form the genesis for this story of bonding amazing survival and an early covenant to make leadership of Marines his life s mission This theme of commitment becomes a leadership concept called The Band of Brothers It is woven into the fabric of the story which leads to a career of over 35 years taking the reader into top levels of government the White House another unpopular

Asian war dealings with the international press in Vietnam riots following Martin Luther King's assassination and provides insights into how things happen in the Military and top levels of our Government. It is easy to read. The Naval Institute Proceedings published a version of the Introduction, an eye witness account of how President Johnson put down the Joint Chiefs of Staff as they tried to advise him on the conduct of the Vietnam War. This put down has never been reported or publicly acknowledged. The article earned the Marine Corps Historical Foundation 1997 Colonel Robert D. Heinl Jr. Memorial Award for The Day It Became the Longest War, an outstanding article pertinent to the history of the U.S. Marine Corps. Chapter 7, Hill 907, was featured in the USNA Alumni magazine Shipmate, highlighting Korean combat experiences of Alumni. Both received critical acclaim. This book is of interest to historians but is intended primarily for the broad military market. The prose is designed for a person without military expertise. It is informative, not judgmental. It combines pathos with humor. It is a testament to the doctrine of unselfish service to Corps and Country. The Light Side of Damnation William F.

Lee, 2006-07-14 War is serious business. However, within all the torment of war, the strongest of bonds are created and nurtured. Through these ties and perhaps because of them, instances of wit along with humorous episodes breathe light into the darkness and damnation of war. The thread that binds this story together is the mentoring affiliation the Commanding General has with Captain Barney Quinn, Company Commander, and later Aide. Barney's at times roguish behavior, his sense of humor, and playfully prankish mind both clash and support this steely-eyed Old Corps Marine. Lieutenant General Walter Barto, through Barney's eyes and voice, you will live among a cast of loveable Marines. All names are fictitious. Experiences real. REVIEWS The Light Side of Damnation By William F. Lee. What are readers saying? Here is a sampling. Just to let you know, I've been reading your book before I go to sleep and I'm losing sleep as it's hard to put down. BB, Princeton, TX. I'm overwhelmed, just finished your book, and I am speechless. Your characters are so well developed and believable, and the humor terrific. I bawled trying to tell a friend about it. It was a real page turner for me. NS, Abington, PA. Sir, I doubt if you remember me, but I certainly do you, and with much respect. The Older We Get, the Better We Were Andrew

Bufalo, 2004-02 The Older We Get, the Better We Were picks up where Swift, Silent, and Surrounded left off. This book contains a collection of humorous sea stories, motivating narratives, and blunt commentary. A must have for the collection of all Marines, friends of Marines, and everyone who is proud to be an American. Lullabies for Lieutenants Franklin

Cox, 2014-01-10 Capturing the chaotic nature of the U.S. Marine experience at war in Vietnam, this memoir recounts the experiences of a young officer in a series of unrelated short pieces. In a narrative as fragmented as the war itself, the only resolution is the same one reached by the Marines who fought: the conclusion of a tour of duty with no happy ending. Each chapter describes a specific event, a story of emotion, or a remarkable person; some are heroes, some are cowards. The reader lives the experience alongside the author, gaining a true sense of the pulse, pounding contact, surrealism, pathos, humor, and beauty that defined one of the low points of the American experience. LIMA-3 Frank McCarthy, 2022-01-18 In 1966, career

Marine Lieutenant Frank McCarthy received the assignment of a lifetime when he was assigned as a platoon commander in an infantry battalion preparing for deployment to Vietnam Following several months of training his men whom he would soon come to believe were some of the finest Marines ever to wear the uniform boarded a ship in San Diego and set sail for Southeast Asia not knowing how many of them would ever see their beloved country again Following a harrowing sea voyage that nearly ended their tour before it began they finally arrived in Vietnam Though a cherry unit with no combat experience within three short months that all changed Eighty two of those first ninety nights were spent in mud filled foxholes or ambush positions covered with leeches shivering through the limitless and cold monsoon rains and incessant enemy mortar fire Days of endless patrols in an area laced with thousands of mines and booby traps as well as the ever present but often unseen enemy As difficult as those first three months were McCarthy says it was a picnic compared to what would follow Recounting his first fourteen months in Vietnam in gripping detail in this book McCarthy draws on his own memory as well as official records to provide an unflinching firsthand account of what it was like to serve and lead as a Marine during the Vietnam War

ONE MORE DAY BOB. FERGUSON, 2024      We'll All Die as Marines Colonel Jim Bathurst USMC (Retired), Jim Bathurst, 2012 For seventeen year old high school dropout Jim Bathurst the Marine Corps's reputation for making men out of boys was something he desperately needed when he enlisted in March of 1958 What began as a four year hitch lasted nearly thirty six years and included an interesting assortment of duty stations and assignments as both enlisted and officer We'll All Die As Marines narrates a story about a young free spirited kid from Dundalk Maryland and how the Corps captured his body mind and spirit Slowly but persistently the Corps transformed him into someone whose first love would forever be the United States Marine Corps It documents not only his leadership service and training but also regales many tales of his fellow Marines that will have the reader laughing cheering and at times crying In this memoir Bathurst reveals that for him a former DI who was awarded the Silver Star Bronze Star Medal with Combat V Purple Heart and a combat commission to second lieutenant the Corps was not a job a career or even a profession it was and still is a way of life
