Fixing Illinois Politics And Policy In The Prairie State:

Fixing Illinois James D. Nowlan, J. Thomas Johnson, 2014-05-01 Persistent problems have left Illinois the butt of jokes and threatened it with fiscal catastrophe In Fixing Illinois James D Nowlan and J Thomas Johnson use their four decades of experience as public servants Springfield veterans and government observers to present a comprehensive program of almost one hundred specific policy ideas aimed at rescuing the state from its long list of problems Nowlan and Johnson start with the history of how one of the most prosperous states of the 1950s became a present day mess riven by debt and discord and increasingly abandoned by both businesses and citizens Among their more than ninety proposals to restore Illinois to greatness An overhaul of state pension systems that includes more reasonable benefits and lengthening of the retirement age among other changes Reducing one of the nation s highest corporate tax rates to attract business Medicare reform through an insurance voucher program Demanding that schools raise expectations for success particularly in rural and impoverished urban areas A new approach to higher education that includes a market driven system that puts funds in the hands of students rather than institutions Broadening of the tax base to include services and reduction in rates The creation of a long term plan to maintain the state s five star transportation infrastructure Raising funds with capital construction bonds to update and integrate the antiquated information systems used by state agencies Uprooting the state s entrenched culture of corruption via public financing of elections redistricting reform and revolving door prohibitions for lawmakers Pointed honest and pragmatic Fixing Illinois is a plan for effective and honest government that seeks an even nobler end restoring our faith in Illinois s institutions and reviving a sense of citizenship and state pride

Our Politics Douglas Kane, 2019-05-09 Douglas Kane an American politician and economist offers readers a straightforward personal account of what it is like to run for and hold public office the demands conflicts temptations and rewards created by political economic and social forces Throughout the book Kane references Illinois and Wisconsin politics The campaigns of his wife Kathleen Vinehout and her years in the Wisconsin senate show that the centralization of political power the structure of campaign organizations and the policy decisions that Kane experienced as an Illinois legislator are not unique to any one state In Our Politics Kane reflects on his nearly fifty years of active engagement in state and local politics In a series of essays he seeks to understand the forces motivations incentives and technologies that shape our politics and produce the consequences that we live with every day He describes how candidates and officeholders deal with the fundamental contradictions inherent in the democratic process and how and why the political power structure has changed He also explores the personal experience of being a legislator from deciding how to vote to building relationships with party leaders fellow legislators the governor and the voters in the district Kane concludes by considering the possibility of change how it might happen and the steps that candidates political parties activists and others might take to better our politics with results more to our liking While many journalists record politics from the outside and numerous political memoirs focus on personalities and what happened to whom and when this book gives an insider's view of politics at the level of state government. This book is not about those politicians but about our politics which together we have created and together we must deal with. Structuring Inequality Tracy L. Steffes, 2024-04-02

How inequality was forged, fought over and forgotten through public policy in metropolitan Chicago. As in many American metropolitan areas, inequality in Chicagoland is visible in its neighborhoods. These inequalities are not inevitable; however, they have been constructed and deepened by public policies around housing, schooling, taxation, and local governance, including hidden state government policies. In Structuring Inequality, historian Tracy L. Steffes shows how metropolitan inequality in Chicagoland was structured, contested, and naturalized over time, even as reformers tried to change it through school desegregation, affordable housing, and property tax reform. While these efforts had modest successes in the city and the suburbs, reformers faced significant resistance and counter-mobilization from affluent suburbanites, real estate developers, and other defenders of the status quo who defended inequality and reshaped the policy conversation about it. Grounded in comprehensive archival research and policy analysis, Structuring Inequality examines the history of Chicagoland's established systems of inequality and provides perspective on the inequality we live with today. The New Chicago Way

Edgar H. Bachrach, Austin Ray Berg, 2019-01-16. For all the wrong reasons, a national spotlight is shining on Chicago. The city has become known for its violence, police abuse, parent and teacher unrest, population decline, and mounting municipal and pension debt. The underlying problem, contend Ed Bachrach and Austin Berg, is that deliberative democracy is dead in the city. Chicago is home to the last strongman political system in urban America. The mayor holds all the power, and any perceived checks on mayoral control are often proven illusory. Rash decisions have resulted in poor outcomes. The outrageous consequences of unchecked power are evident in government failures in elections, schools, fiscal discipline, corruption, public support for private enterprise, policing, and more. Rather than simply lament the situation, criticize specific leaders, or justify an ideology, Bachrach and Berg compare the decisions about Chicago's governance and finances with choices made in fourteen other large U.S. cities. The problems that seem unique to Chicago have been encountered elsewhere, and Chicagoans, the authors posit, can learn from the successful solutions other cities have embraced. Chicago government and its citizens must let go of the past to prepare for the future, argue Bachrach and Berg. A future filled with demographic, technological, and economic change requires a government capable of responding and adapting. Reforms can transform the city. The prescriptions for change provided in this book point toward a hopeful future: the New Chicago Way. Southern Illinois
