why despite its intense pain it can also help us grow Experiencing grief at the death of a person we love or who matters to us as universal as it is painful is central to the human condition Surprisingly however philosophers have rarely examined grief in any depth In Grief Michael Cholbi presents a groundbreaking philosophical exploration of this complex emotional event offering valuable new insights about what grief is whom we grieve and how grief can ultimately lead us to a richer self understanding and a fuller realization of our humanity Drawing on psychology social science and literature as well as philosophy Cholbi explains that we grieve for the loss of those in whom our identities are invested including people we don't know personally but cherish anyway such as public figures Their deaths not only deprive us of worthwhile experiences they also disrupt our commitments and values Yet grief is something we should embrace rather than avoid an important part of a good and meaningful life The key to understanding this paradox Cholbi says is that grief offers us a unique and powerful opportunity to grow in self knowledge by fashioning a new identity Although grief can be tumultuous and disorienting it also reflects our distinctly human capacity to rationally adapt as the relationships we depend on evolve An original account of how grieving works and why it is so important Grief shows how the pain of this experience gives us a chance to deepen our relationships with others and ourselves
