Fifty Famous Stories Retold James Baldwin, 2021-01-21

Many years ago there lived in England a wise and good king whose name was Alfred No other man ever did so much for his country as he and people now all over the world speak of him as Alfred the Great In those days a king did not have a very easy life There was war almost all the time and no one else could lead his army into battle so well as he And so between ruling and fighting he had a busy time of it indeed A fierce rude people called the Danes had come from over the sea and were fighting the English There were so many of them and they were so bold and strong that for a long time they gained every battle If they kept on they would soon be the masters of the whole country At last after a great battle the English army was broken up and scattered Every man had to save himself in the best way he could King Alfred fled alone in great haste through the woods and swamps Late in the day the king came to the hut of a wood cutter He was very tired and hungry and he begged the wood cutter's wife to give him something to eat and a place to sleep in her hut The woman was baking some cakes upon the hearth and she looked with pity upon the poor ragged fellow who seemed so hungry She had no thought that he was the king Yes she said I will give you some supper if you will watch these cakes I want to go out and milk the cow and you must see that they do not burn while I am gone 3 King Alfred was very willing to watch the cakes but he had far greater things to think about How was he going to get his army together again And how was he going to drive the fierce Danes out of the land He forgot his hunger he forgot the cakes he forgot that he was in the woodcutter's hut His mind was busy making plans for to mor row In a little while the woman came back The cakes were smoking on the hearth They were burned to a crisp Ah how angry she was You lazy fellow she cried See what you have done You want some thing to eat but you do not want to work I have been told that she even struck the king with a stick but I can hardly believe that she was so ill natured The king must have laughed to himself at the thought of being scolded in this way and he was so hungry that he did not mind the woman's angry words half so much as the loss of the cakes I do not know whether he had any thing to eat that night or whether he had to go to bed without his supper But it was not many days until he had gathered his men together again and had beaten the Danes in a great battle

Fifty Famous Stories Retold (Classic Reprint) James Baldwin, 2017-10-16 Excerpt from Fifty Famous Stories Retold But the tide came in just as it always did The water rose higher and higher It came up around the king's chair and wet not only his feet but also his robe His officers stood about him alarmed and wondering whether he was not mad Then Canute took off his crown and threw it down upon the sand I shall never wear it again he said And do you my men learn a lesson from What you have seen There is only one King who is all powerful and it is he who rules the sea and holds the ocean in the hollow of his hand It is he whom you ought to praise and serve above all others About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Fifty Famous Stories Retold James Baldwin, 2015-11-27 There are numerous time honored stories which have become so incorporated into the literature and thought of our race that a knowledge of them is an indispensable part of one's education These stories are of several different classes To one class belong the popular fairy tales which have delighted untold generations of children and will continue to delight them to the end of time To another class belong the limited number of fables that have come down to us through many channels from hoar antiquity To a third belong the charming stories of olden times that are derived from the literatures of ancient peoples such as the Greeks and the Hebrews A fourth class includes the half legendary tales of a distinctly later origin which have for their subjects certain romantic episodes in the lives of well known heroes and famous men or in the history of a people It is to this last class that most of the fifty stories contained in the present volume belong As a matter of course some of these stories are better known and therefore more famous than others Some have a slight historical value some are useful as giving point to certain great moral truths others are products solely of the fancy and are intended only to amuse Some are derived from very ancient sources and are current in the literature of many lands some have come to us through the ballads and folk tales of the English people a few are of quite recent origin nearly all are the subjects of frequent allusions in poetry and prose and in the conversation of educated people Care has been taken to exclude everything that is not strictly within the limits of probability hence there is here no trespassing upon the domain of the fairy tale the fable or the myth That children naturally take a deep interest in such stories no person can deny that the reading of them will not only give pleasure but will help to lay the foundation for broader literary studies can scarcely be doubted It is believed therefore that the present collection will be found to possess an educative value which will commend it as a supplementary reader in the middle primary grades at school It is also hoped that the book will prove so attractive that it will be in demand out of school as well as in Acknowledgments are due to Mrs Charles A Lane by whom eight or ten of the stories were suggested
