

5.1 Skin Study Guide by Hisrich

5.1.a. What are the functions of skin?

Protection	Sensation	Temperature Regulation
It is the first defense against pathogens.	It alerts the body of danger through the sensation of pain.	It insulates us to maintain our internal temperature. It also allows us to lose or retain heat, mainly by shifting the diameter of the blood vessels in the skin.

5.1.b. What types of tissue make up the layers of the skin?

The skin is made of epithelial ("having the nature of covering a surface") tissue. The top layer is the epidermis ("top skin")—which is neither sensitive nor vascular—and the next layer is the dermis ("skin"). It is also referred to as the mesoderm ("middle skin") and is very sensitive. Below that is the hypodermis ("below the skin"). The blood vessels penetrate the hypodermis and dermis. The hypodermis has fat tissue, blood vessels & connective tissue. The hair follicles begin in the hypodermis & the tips of the hair extend beyond the epidermis. Collagen and elastin are proteins found in the dermis. Together, they give the skin its smooth structure & make the skin look young. Keratin ("horny") is a fibrous protein that is part of the epidermis & the main component of hair.

5.1.c. What role do accessory organs such as sweat glands and sebaceous glands play in the skin?

Sweat Glands	Sebaceous Glands
Sweat glands begin in the superficial hypodermis and extend through the dermis and empty out of the epidermis . They are exocrine ("secrete outside") glands & the primary function of most humans sweat glands is to cool the body (eccrine glands, found all over). Humans also have larger apocrine sweat glands in their armpits and perianal regions (i.e. crotch). They secrete an oily, milky substance that coats hair so odor-causing bacteria can grow on it. All sweat glands have specialized myoepithelial cells ("muscle covering surface") that help to squeeze the glands and push out the secretions & they are controlled by the nervous system & hormones from the endocrine system.	The sebaceous ("full of fat") glands begin in the hypodermis and empty through pores in the epidermis. They are exocrine ("secrete outside") glands that secrete an oily/waxy material (sebum) to lubricate and waterproof skin and hair. Humans have the greatest density of these glands on their faces and scalps. The only place they do NOT exist in humans is on the palms and soles. Eyelids have special sebaceous glands that secrete tears (a type of sebum).

5.1.d. What happens to skin as it is exposed to sunlight and as a person ages?

Aging	Sunlight
Skin changes over time due to exposure to the sun's UV rays, which damage the fibers in skin called elastin , that helps give skin its flexibility. As elastin deteriorates, the skin starts to sag and stretch and become unable to go back into place after stretching. That makes skin bruise and tear more easily & take longer to heal.	Most wrinkles and spots are caused by sunlight. Sunlight speeds the aging process of skin & increases risk of skin cancer. Exposure to the sun causes skin lesions, tumors, wrinkles, freckles, discolored areas, yellowing & destruction of elastin and collagen tissues. UV light from the sun is the #1 cause of skin cancer (tanning beds are just as harmful). Melanin is a natural pigment that the skin produces when exposed to UVB radiation. It helps disperse about 99.9% of UV radiation as heat, protecting the skin from skin cancer. That's why people with darker skin (more melanin) are at lower risk of skin cancer).

Whether you're a student looking for textbooks, a professional seeking industry-specific manuals, or someone interested in self-improvement, these digital resources provide an efficient and accessible means of acquiring knowledge. Moreover, PDF books and manuals offer a range of benefits compared to other digital formats. PDF files are designed to retain their formatting regardless of the device used to open them. This ensures that the content appears exactly as intended by the author, with no loss of formatting or missing graphics. Additionally, PDF files can be easily annotated, bookmarked, and searched for specific terms, making them highly practical for studying or referencing. When it comes to accessing Functions Of The Skin Study Guide books and manuals, several platforms offer an extensive collection of resources. One such platform is Project Gutenberg, a nonprofit organization that provides over 60,000 free eBooks. These books are primarily in the public domain, meaning they can be freely distributed and downloaded. Project Gutenberg offers a wide range of classic literature, making it an excellent resource for literature enthusiasts. Another popular platform for Functions Of The Skin Study Guide books and manuals is Open Library. Open Library is an initiative of the Internet Archive, a non-profit organization dedicated to digitizing cultural artifacts and making them accessible to the public. Open Library hosts millions of books, including both public domain works and contemporary titles. It also allows users to borrow digital copies of certain books for a limited period, similar to a library lending system. Additionally, many universities and educational institutions have their own digital libraries that provide free access to PDF books and manuals. These libraries often offer academic texts, research papers, and technical manuals, making them invaluable resources for students and researchers. Some notable examples include MIT OpenCourseWare, which offers free access to course materials from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the Digital Public Library of America, which provides a vast collection of digitized books and historical documents. In conclusion, Functions Of The Skin

Study Guide books and manuals for download have transformed the way we access information.
