Mannshardt Oliveira, 2017-04-10 Seminar paper from the year 2016 in the subject Economics Statistics and Methods grade 1 7 University of Duisburg Essen language English abstract Despite its name the field of game theory has had for a long time a somewhat weaker relationship with sports and games in general although it has always been more advanced than other fields in economics with regards to its closeness to sports and games In its early days game theory was mostly occupied with big and more serious topics than sports and games such as industrial organization in economics wars and other military issues in political sciences The reason behind this development in the early days of game theory might be due the fact that this field kind of been developed through turbulent times of World War II and Cold War for example e.g prisoner's dilemma within the nuclear arms race between USA and Russia back then USSR Lately though there has been some development in the game theory within other fields like sports and games especially football books like The economics of football 2001 and Soccernomics 2012 are good starting points into the subject While these books generally inquire help from economics to explain football's issues Apesteguia and Palacios Huerta 2010 and Palacios Huerta 2014 gives priority to illustrate how football can help economics the other way around

How the number of foreign players influences the performance of national clubs and the national team Carsten Richter, 2015-12-14 Master's Thesis from the year 2015 in the subject Sport Sport Economics Sport Management grade 1 3 Birkbeck University of London Management course MSc Sport Management and Marketing language English abstract This paper is about whether the number of foreign players might have an influence on the performance of clubs and national teams Before analysing the mentioned correlation this research explains in detail all the different potential factors which might also influence performance This paper highlights different regulations that have a considerable influence on clubs such as the UEFA home grown player regulation and different domestic rules Other sources of impact are the different youth academy systems The German youth development system has been an important factor in the success of the German national team since its establishment in 2004 which might be due to the increasing number of competitions in which young German players are determined to get a place The English Premier League is starting to follow in the footsteps of Germany by implementing different regulations to support English players Italy however is showing dramatic differences with regard to its countrywide youth systems because it seems to merely focus on the academies of the different clubs Similar systems can be found in Spain which has nonetheless two very successful academies La Masia and La Fabrica Other related factors to consider are language and funding As English is one of the most spoken languages in the world the Premier League is attracting players from a variety of countries Yet as we are living in a modern economic world the money factor is also quite important The Premier League is one of the leagues with the biggest revenue streams in the world The League shares its revenue with the clubs which they can then spend on players Hence the Premier League is the most valued league in football and is spending millions of pounds per year on buying the best players in the world at the expense of young English players
