E-Book Ashok Agarwal,Florence Boitrelle,Panagiotis Drakopoulos,Hassan Nooman Sallam,Ramadan Saleh,2023-11-29 Despite the fact that about half of infertility problems stem from male factors gynecologists are often the first health care providers to perform the initial assessment of the infertile couple For this reason it is critical that gynecologists and reproductive medicine specialists remain up to date on the primary conditions that cause male infertility as well as current diagnostic tools and treatment options of both natural and assisted conception From diagnosis through treatment Male Infertility Management of Infertile Men in Reproductive Medicine offers expert straightforward guidance on the pathophysiology and management of male infertility for clinicians who assist couples early in the process of trying to conceive Covers diagnostic aspects of male infertility clinical laboratory and imaging methods as well as various therapeutic options including classical and advanced surgical procedures Discusses intrauterine insemination conventional in vitro fertilization intracytoplasmic sperm injection sperm cryopreservation preimplantation genetic testing and more Begins each chapter with key points and ends with clinical scenarios of real life problems and their solutions Shares the knowledge and expertise of global experts in the field Any additional digital ancillary content may publish up to 6 weeks following the publication date Advances in Clinical Andrology C.L.R Barratt,I.D. Cooke,2012-12-06 Infertility is a problem for the couple and evaluation of the couple is preferable in a clinic where both males and females may be seen together The contribution to care by the urologist and the gynaecologist each with an interest in infertility is different but complementary

My appreciation of this was sharpened between 1976 and 1985 during my association with the World Health Organization's Special Programme of Research Development and Research Training in Human Reproduction at the meetings of the Steering Committee of its Task Force on Infertility. The deliberations of this group were aimed at developing a protocol for investigation of the infertile couple and it became apparent to me as a gynaecologist how important is the precise characterization of the male partner's role to the formulation of the management plan for the infertile couple. To improve the quality of our evaluation of the male partner, our technical staff were trained in the semen methodology of the laboratory of Dr F Comhaire of Ghent and we were joined by Dr CLR Barratt, male reproductive biologist. It seemed appropriate to share our enthusiasm for clinical andrology so, after discussion with Dr Comhaire and Professor T Glover, an eminent male reproductive biologist then of Brisbane who planned a sabbatical to his native was arranged for 1 and 2 May 1986. Professor Glover, in Yorkshire, a meeting of the meeting.

A Practical Guide to Basic Laboratory Andrology, 2010. This practical, extensively illustrated handbook covers the procedures that are undertaken in andrology and ART laboratories to analyse and assess male factor infertility and to prepare spermatozoa for use in assisted conception therapy. The content is presented as brief, authoritative overviews of the relevant biological background for each area, plus detailed step-by-step descriptions of the relevant analytical procedures. Each technical section includes pertinent quality control considerations as well as the optimum presentation of results. In addition to the comprehensive basic semen analysis incorporating careful analysis of sperm morphology, the handbook provides established techniques for the use of computer-aided sperm analysis and sperm functional assessment. Throughout the handbook, the interpretation of laboratory results in the clinical context is highlighted and safe laboratory practice is emphasized. It is an invaluable resource to all scientists and technicians who perform diagnostic testing for male factor infertility. Provided by publisher. Human Male Fertility and Semen Analysis Timothy D.
