FIG 1. Schematic of the proposed model for the development of the human brain. The model is based on the idea that the brain is a complex system that develops through a series of stages, from the formation of the neural tube to the development of the cerebral cortex. The model is divided into three main sections: the neural tube, the neural crest, and the neural plate. The neural tube is the first stage of development, and it gives rise to the brain and spinal cord. The neural crest is the second stage, and it gives rise to the peripheral nervous system. The neural plate is the third stage, and it gives rise to the cerebral cortex. The model is based on the idea that the brain is a complex system that develops through a series of stages, from the formation of the neural tube to the development of the cerebral cortex.
