Knapp, 2014 Although the U S Supreme Court first considered the conflict between U S discovery rules and foreign non disclosure law in 1958 a clear standard regarding how to enforce U S law against foreign domiciled companies has yet to emerge As a result of the 2006 amendments to the U S Federal Rules of Civil Procedure concerning electronic discovery e discovery procedures more and more companies with global operations are finding themselves enmeshed in e discovery that requires a greater understanding of the issues and laws from a global perspective because it is challenging to navigate and manage e discovery when you have parent companies based overseas or U S based companies with foreign subsidiaries This paper looks at in light of the 2006 amendments and the lack of case law regarding the effect of the 2006 amendments whether the enforcement techniques as applied to paper discovery should be applied to e discovery and whether there is anything specific to the nature of e discovery that necessitates a change in the application of the law Specifically the paper addresses how the European data privacy regime may affect the application of paper discovery enforcement techniques to e discovery The paper suggests that it would be unwise for U S courts to afford the European Data Privacy regime significant deference Instead the European Data Privacy regime should be treated with skepticism similarly to how the U S courts have viewed blocking statutes contained in foreign law In particular treating the EU Data
